I practiced law for many decades and handled some of the most publicized major cases in American history. The criminal cases are most well-known and include the appeal for Sam Shepard, representation of the "Boston Strangler" (Albert DeSalvo), defense of Patty Hearst, and defense of O.J. Simpson.

In addition to criminal defense work, much of my legal career was devoted to handling civil cases—often those other attorneys declined to take against government officials and others in prominent positions. I have also worked worldwide, representing the Prime Minister of Bahamas, and other international leaders.

During my career, I have been privileged to work with the top lawyers in the country and in the world. Most recently, I am working with a national company that funds medical care for those injured in motor vehicle accidents, and I have become acquainted with the top lawyers across the country in the personal injury market. In that capacity, I have been privileged to get to know Nathaniel "Nate" Preston, and the team of lawyers and staff at Warnock MacKinlay Law in Arizona. I can state without reservation that if I needed a personal injury attorney in Arizona, I would call a premier law firm like this one.

Sincerely,

Francis Lee Bailey
